Conversation 1

Walter: Let's do something different this weekend, Barbara.

Barbara: OK, Walter. What do you suggest?

Walter: Well, we went to a basketball game last weekend. . . . I know! Why don't we go to a baseball game?

Barbara: Uh, I don't think so. Basketball's OK, but I'm not really interested in baseball.

Walter: Well, what do you suggest?

Barbara: Well, we could go shopping. . . .

Walter: Don't even think about it!

Barbara: OK, what about swimming, then?

Walter: Now that's a good idea!

Conversation 2

John: Hey, Julie, there's an outdoor music festival at the park tomorrow afternoon. Why don't we go?

Julie: I don't know, John. What kind of music is it? I'm not a big fan of folk music, you know. Rock's OK, but I don't like folk.

John: I don't, either. Let me look in the newspaper again. . . . I think it's jazz or reggae. Yes, here it is! It's a jazz festival.

Julie: That sounds good. I love jazz.

John: Great!

Conversation 3

Dave: Hey, Joan. Do you want to go to a movie tonight?

Joan: What kind of movie are you thinking about, Dave?

Dave: Well, there's an action movie at the mall, and there's a new horror movie downtown. . . .

Joan: Well, action movies are OK, but not horror movies. You know I don't like them.

Dave: Sorry. . . . I forgot.

Joan: How about a western or a comedy?

Dave: OK. . . . And guess what. There's an all-night comedy festival on TV tonight.

Joan: Great! Why don't we stay home and watch it, then?

Dave: Sounds good to me.
