Listening A [Track 05]

Mike: Hello?

Tina: Hi, Mike. It's Tina. Guess what!

Mike: What?

Tina: I met a famous person yesterday! Guess who!

Mike: Oh, Tina . . . I don't know. Was it a rock star? a famous actor?

Tina: No, none of those. I met A. K. Rider!

Mike: You're kidding. You mean A. K. Rider, the movie director? Wow! I've seen all his movies! I've always wanted to meet him. I saw him at the airport last year, but there were reporters and photographers all around him, and nobody could get near him. Lucky you! How did you meet him?

Tina: I was having dinner at Le Chalet when he walked into the restaurant.

Mike: Le Chalet? Wow! That's a fancy restaurant! Was it a business dinner?

Tina: No. I was having dinner with my husband and my brother Joe. It was Joe's birthday.

Mike: Oh, Joe's the actor, right?

Tina: Yes, and he knows A. K. So when A. K. saw Joe, he came to our table and talked to us. One of the waiters even took a picture of us! It was awesome!

Mike: But how does Joe know A. K.? Have they done any movies together?

Tina: No, never, but Joe's wife is a composer. She wrote the music for A. K.'s first three movies. She's known him for more than ten years.

Mike: Right. . . . So, now that you've met him, do you think you'll see him again?

Tina: Well, he's invited us to a party at his house next Saturday. I think I'll start by watching a few of his movies at home this week. You've seen all of them, but I haven't seen any!
