Listening A [Track 12]

Ellen: Hi, Jason. What's that you're looking at?

Jason: Oh, hi, Ellen. It's a DVD. I bought it for my daughter for her birthday.

Ellen: Who's that woman on the front cover?

Jason: That's Minty, the pop singer. She's pretty well-known. Well . . . well-known to my daughter and her friends and other kids her age.

Ellen: Oh, I know Minty. My kids are too young to appreciate her – they're not really interested in music yet – but I've heard some of her music. She's a best-selling artist. But she looks different in this picture . . . her hair is . . . uh . . . pink!

Jason: Yes, it is – in this picture. But look at these pictures on the back. Her hair is dyed green in this one and purple in that one.

Ellen: Hmm . . . it's difficult to say, but I think I prefer it green.

Jason: From what my daughter says, Minty's fans love her trendy hairstyles. They can't wait to see her newest looks.

Ellen: So, do you know any of Minty's songs? I've listened to only a few of them, but they weren't bad.

Jason: Actually, I know almost all of her music. I sometimes listen to her by myself, but most of the time I listen with my daughter. But, Ellen, I'm curious about something. If your kids are too young to listen to music, how do you know Minty's songs?

Ellen: Well, I heard one of her songs at a coffee shop about a month ago. I liked it a lot, so I searched for her music online. That's how I found one of her music videos. One that shows some whales swimming near a beach.

Jason: Oh, I've seen that one. Believe it or not, it's her best-selling video.
